DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 6 recites the limitation "the support of the prestressing anchor". There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Andra et al (6584738).

The applied reference has a common inventor and assignee with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

Art Unit: 3635

Regarding claim 1: Andra et al discloses a tensioning device for strip-shaped tension members (1) on supporting structures, especially concrete supporting structures, with a tensioning traverse (5), which is detachably fastened to a base plate (4) that is permanently fastened to the supporting structure (3), whereby a prestressing anchor (10), connected to the strip-shaped tension member by means of clamping, may be displaced by means of pressing elements (15) that are supported on the tensioning traverse for the purpose of applying tension to the tension member and against the tensioning traverse or the base plate wherein a guide body (14), which supports the tension member (as seen in figure 4) so that it can glide, at least upward, is arranged between the tensioning traverse and the prestressing anchor in a stationary manner.

Regarding claim 2: A tensioning device according to claim 1, wherein the guide body exhibits a guide slit (as seen in figure 1) that can accommodate the tension body so that it can glide.

Regarding claim 3: A tensioning device according to claim 1, wherein the guide body is applied to a guide support (17; Col. 3, lines 26-30) that is connected to the tensioning traverse so as to be deflection resistant.

Regarding claim 4: A tensioning device according to claim 3, wherein the guide body is arranged on the top of the tension member and exhibits lateral sections (the ends of the body that clearly protrude laterally as seen in figure 1) that protrude laterally beyond the tension member, which are detachably fastened (via element 15) to a bracket (one end of base plate 4) that lies beneath the tension member.

Art Unit: 3635

Regarding claim 5: A tensioning device according to claim 1 wherein the pressing elements lie in the plane of the tension member (as seen in figure 4).

Regarding claim 6 (as best understood): A tensioning device according to claim 1 wherein the support of the prestressing anchor occurs by the use of blocks or the like in the plane of the tension member (as seen in figure 4).
